- Mark Ohanian, Director of Programs, International Orthodox Christian Charities (IOCC)
- Paul Miller, Senior Policy Advisor, Lutheran World Relief

Organized by World Vision and ACT Alliance, a global coalition of over 140 churches and affiliated organizations, this session will explore how to identify, mobilize, adapt and leverage the strengths, networks and assets of faith-based organizations to build resilience and realize the Sustainable Development Goals. Additionally, the session will highlight lessons learned from the global operations of ACT Alliance members and World Vision, as well as facilitate a constructive exchange with senior World Bank leadership on its strategies for engaging with faith leaders and communities in partnerships for development.

'Smart Approaches to Agriculture as a Viable Alternative to Dwindling Oil Prices'

2:00 – 3:30 pm

Room: I2-250

Sponsors: African Business Roundtable (ABR) & The World Bank Group
Enabling the Business of Agriculture (WB EBA)

Panelists:

- Dr. Olusegun Mimiko, Executive Governor, Ondo State
- Teklu Tesfaye, Senior Agriculture Specialist, The World Bank Group
- Professor Emmanuel Nnadozie, Executive Secretary, African Capacity Building Foundation
- Larry Hiram, Ph.D., Director, International Agriculture Institute for Food and Agriculture, United States Department of Agriculture (USDA)
- Patricia Sheikh, Director, Agribusiness, Corporate Council on Africa
- Eloho Otobo, Senior Fellow, Peacebuilding and Global Economic Policy, Global Governance Institute

As commodity prices—particularly crude oil—tumble, oil-exporting developing nations find themselves with yawning budgetary gaps as their foreign exchange earnings plummet. Many oil-dependent countries will now find it quite challenging to meet the goals of reducing poverty as the Sustainable Development Goals aspire to do by 2030. This session is designed to engage key stakeholders on innovative methods and smart approaches to support increased agricultural output and earnings in developing countries. With new research from the World Bank, there are greater opportunities to develop improved agribusiness enabling environments that can diversify developing nations' economies.

- Katie Malouf Bous, Education and Health Policy Advisor, Oxfam International
- Tony Baker, Education for All Campaign Manager, RESULTS Educational Fund
- Jonah Nyenpan, Executive Director, Liberia Education Monitor
- Lincoln Ajoku, Education Advisor, Concern Worldwide US

Donor support to for-profit, fee-charging school companies has instigated a global debate. Are these schools reaching the poor, or are they reinforcing school fees, a known barrier for the poor that the international community has worked decades to abolish. The World Bank, and in particular the IFC, has been criticized for recent investments in this area by both local communities and global civil society, raising a fundamental question: Why is the World Bank supporting the expansion of for-profit, fee-charging private schools?

‘Cracking the Code: Enhancing Emergency Response & Resilience in Fragile States’

This session will discuss transparency and accountability of the World Bank Group's financial intermediary (FI) investments and the challenges of this model with respect to due diligence and protecting human rights and the environment. Panelists will focus on opportunities for overcoming these challenges, and whether IFC's recent FI lending reform efforts need to go further. New research on IFC FI sub-projects conducted by Inclusive Development International will be presented, along with a case study on a proposed coal plant in Kenya. The session will also aim to draw lessons for the proposed safeguard governing the Bank's public sector FI lending.

'Local Governments and Public Health: Coordinating to Improve Quality of Life and Achieve Sustainable Community and Economic Growth'

Wednesday, April 13
4:00 – 5:30 pm
Room: I2-250

Sponsor: The International City/County Management Association

Panelists:

- Meera Shekar, Global Lead, Nutrition, The World Bank Group
- Shan Soe-Lin, Program Director, Results for Development
- Tisungeni Zimpita, National Coordinator, Malawi Scaling Up Nutrition Civil Society Alliance

Despite political commitment in high-burden countries and globally agreed nutrition targets, investments in nutrition are still a fraction of ODA and budgets. This session delves into emerging evidence on benefits of good nutrition for health and productivity, including the Lancet Breastfeeding Series. It focuses on cost-effective, scalable interventions and new costing and financing analysis for achieving the World Health Assembly (WHA) 2025 nutrition targets. Participants will discuss opportunities this year to translate evidence into better policies, increased funding and accountability. The 2016 Nutrition for Growth Summit is a key moment to make investments needed to achieve the global nutrition targets.

'The Future of Development Data?'

Thursday, April 14
9:00 – 10:30 am
Room: I2-250

Sponsors: Development Gateway, Global Development Network & Locus Analytics

- Daniel Goldman, Adviser, Locus Analytics
- Divyanka Sharma, Systems Economist, Locus Analytics
- Dr. Susan Stout, Senior Adviser, Development Gateway Results Data Initiative
- Dr. Sanjeev Khagram, Coordinator, Global Partnership for Sustainable Development Data (GPSDD)

Our community envisions a powerful role for data and technology in the post-2015 development agenda. But what specific needs will we address first? Which data and tools are most important? And how do we use data to achieve results for real people? This panel will articulate perspectives on these issues from each element of the development data “ecosystem” -- local-level data collection, analysis and visualizations, dissemination, and use for decision-making. The session will begin with a series of fast-paced, visual lightning talks by practitioners and researchers working toward data-driven development, followed by a lively debate and questions from the audience.

‘What standards for Public-Private Partnerships (PPPs)? Analyzing the role of The World Bank Group’

Panelists:

- Elana Berger, Child Rights Program manager, Bank Information Center (moderator)
- Elaine Zuckerman, Executive Director, Gender Action
- Moses Ntenga, Executive Director, Joy for Children

The session will include a panel of experts that can discuss specific projects and their impacts on different groups, including children, women and indigenous peoples. It would also include representatives from the Bank that can discuss examples of how the Bank, or the IFC, is managing the influx of workers successfully and/or how new tools at the Bank can be used to prevent negative impacts associated with large infrastructure and influx of workers.

'Talking About Teachers- Challenges to Institutional Coherence'

Thursday, April 14

2:00 – 3:30 pm

Room: I2-220

Sponsor: Education International

Panelists:

- Dr Toni Verger, Professor of Sociology, University of Barcelona
- Mr. Amit Dar, Director, The Education Global Practice
- Karen Mundy, Chief Technical Officer, Global Partnership for Education (GPE)
- David Edwards, Deputy General Secretary, Education International (moderator)

The starting point for this session will be Education International (EI)'s recent comparative study on how the World Bank portrays teachers and related policies in knowledge products and lending projects. EI will facilitate a discussion between the author of the study, the World Bank's Director of Education Global Practice and the Global Partnership for Education's Chief Technical Officer, looking at the discrepancies between recommended teacher policies and the new professional imperatives for deeper learning and whole system approaches. The session will also discuss progressive examples of teacher policy and the potential for improving education quality through teachers' professional capital. Following this, CSO representatives and others present in the audience will have the chance to ask questions of the experts to further the discussion about teacher policy.

‘IMF and World Bank’s Influence on Economic Policymaking in Developing Countries’

- Mr. Peter Kristensen, Lead Environmental Specialist / Environment & Natural Resources, The World Bank Group
- Ms. Nedwa Nech, Director, Mauritanie 2000
- Mr. Sven Biermann, Director, Fisheries Transparency Initiative

This session will bring together government representatives from countries which have committed to the new Fisheries Transparency Initiative (FiTI) as well as representatives from business, civil society and intergovernmental organizations. This session will be a unique opportunity to share insights into evolution, experience, success factors and challenges of establishing a new global transparency initiative. The session will also discuss how global transparency initiatives can help shaping an enabling environment to increase accountability. Outcomes of this session will benefit those supporting transparency endeavors. It will also highlight opportunities and challenges of establishing transparency in fisheries through a multi-stakeholder approach.

'What Does the Shrinking Space for Civil Society Mean for the World Bank's Twin Goals?'

Thursday, April 14
4:00 – 5:30 pm
Room: I2-220

Sponsor: Bank Information Center (BIC)

Panelists:

- Hend Badawy, National Endowment for Democracy
- Arzu Geybullayeva, Azeri Journalist
- Jackson Shaa, Narasha Community Development Group
- Jessica Evans, Human Rights Watch
- World Bank Group representative and moderator TBC

The World Bank has committed to 100% beneficiary feedback in its projects and aims through its corporate strategy to empower citizens to participate in the development process. At the same time, since 2012 over 60 countries have passed legislation restricting civil society's ability to freely operate and many communities face intimidation or criminalization when raising concerns around development activities. This session will draw on examples of restrictions on citizen voice from Egypt, Azerbaijan, and Kenya; discuss implications of restricted civil society space for the World Bank's development goals; and raise recommendations for ways in which the Bank can ensure participatory development.

'The Syrian Migration Crisis: Shaping a Developmental Post Conflict Model'

Thursday, April 14

- Christian Kopf, Partner, Spinnaker Capital
- Paolo Mauro, Senior Fellow, Peterson Institute of International Economics
- Brad Setser, Senior Fellow, Council on Foreign Relations
- Brett House, Senior Fellow, Massey College, University of Toronto (moderator)

This session will critically review key theoretical and practical design questions in GDP-linked and state-contingent debt, and consider core execution concerns for sovereigns, market-makers, asset owners, and asset managers regarding the primary issuance, placement, and secondary-market trading of such debt. GDP-linked and state-contingent debt has heretofore been limited largely to the provision of sweeteners in the context of emerging-market restructurings, such as the Brady deals in the 1990s and the more recent Argentina and Greece restructurings. This session’s discussion will outline why and how GDP-linked and state-contingent debt should become an effective component of every sovereign’s liability management strategy.

'Review and Update of the World Bank's Environmental and Social Safeguard Policies:
Consultations Report-out and Accountability'

Friday, April 15
11:00 – 12:30 am
Room: I2-220

Sponsor: Operational Policy and Country Services (OPCS) and Inspection Panel (IP)
Panelists: (TBC)

The most recent series of consultations on the World Bank's proposed draft Environmental and Social Framework (ESF) spanned 33 countries - including 30 borrowing countries – and focused on the implementability of the proposed framework. This session will provide a summary of the feedback received and lessons learned. The second half of the session will discuss the role of the Inspection Panel using the draft framework to better understand the implications.

‘The Role of The World Bank and IMF in Responsible and Progressive Taxation’

Friday, April 15
11:00 – 12:30 pm
Room: I2-250

Sponsors: Christian Aid & Oxfam

Panelists:

- Sara Jespersen, Project Manager, Tax and Development, IBIS Denmark
- Matthew Martin, Director, Development Finance International
- Ewan Livingston, Advocacy Adviser, ActionAid UK

- Ismaïla Diallo, Tax official, Finance Ministry Senegal
- Cephass Makunike, Research and Policy Advisor, Tax Justice Network – Africa
- Susana Ruiz, Head of Fiscal Justice Campaign, Oxfam (moderator)

Aid or private sector financing won't be enough to finance the SDG. Raising more domestic resources should be done in a progressive way to reduce inequality. Harmful tax practices jeopardize this, and also harm good governance of the developing country tax system.

What should their role be beyond their recently announced initiative to help developing countries strengthen their tax system? How can they give more progressive advice? How can the IFC and other DFIs better align their own lending practices to ensure that companies they invest pay the right amount of taxes in the right place at the right time?

‘Delivering on Health Spending Commitments in Africa for Women and Children’

Friday, April 15
